

wood | realm of the horses

Used for its light properties which allow it to stand tall and its ease of cutting to resemble the horse scale "doors."

metal | tranquility of falling water

Its thin flexibility allows it to bend into a fluid form and circle grinding the metal reflects light similar to water.

glass | mirror-like reflection pool

Used for its reflective qualities, back painted acrylic serves as a base to reflect the sculpture like Barragan's reflecting pool.

concrete | worldly weight of human realm

Dense and heavy, it was used to represent the basic insignificant human realm in comparison with the animal realm.